Itinerary

Departure from Posadas, Misiones – Carlos Pellegrini

Transfer to Jorge Newbery Airport in Buenos Aires city. Reception and transfer from Posadas Airport to the hostel. It is one of the most important biological areas in Argentina, like other wetlands that regulate the water flow in the region.

The biodiversity of the environment is outstanding; it is shelter for a number of animal species, such as the marsh deer, the capybara, the crested screamer, the alligator and, within the vegetal variety of species, we have the aguapey, more known as the camalote.

Arrival at the hostel in the Iberá Marshes and welcome toast. Dinner.

Sailing Along Corrientes Stream & Bird Watching and of Autochthonous Fauna Observation

Breakfast at the hostel. We will set out for a motorboat trip around the Iberá lagoons, go along the Corrientes stream where we will watch autochthonous fauna like alligators, marsh deer, capybaras, and also different bird species.

We will get back for lunch. After that, we will have a rest at the hostel and then walk around the forest through the interpretation trails. We will watch the autochthonous flora and the typical Iberá trees, and also the carayá monkeys and brown brocket deer. We will visit the Interpretation Center of the Iberá Reserve. We will have dinner at dusk.

Headwaters of the Miriñay River Voyage – Canoeing on the marshes

Breakfast at the hostel. We will set out for a voyage along the headwaters of the Miriñay River to watch the wild fauna. Then we will come back for a break. In the afternoon, we will do canoeing on the marshes. We will get back for dinner at dusk.

Corrientes Stream Voyage

Breakfast at the hostel. We will set out to watch the heron sanctuary and marsh deer along the external coast of the Corrientes stream. We will get back for lunch and after a break we will end our visit in the Iberá Marshes.

End of our services.
